

Teaching seminar in social studies is an elective course; it includes the definition of social studies, its historical development and objectives. It gives a brief description of social sciences as a core resource of social studies. It also covers the social studies curriculum and citizenship education and the social studies teacher. The course cover also teaching and learning strategies of social studies and the new trends in it.