It aims at deepening the statistical methods that are based on analyzing deviation in research problems pertaining to experimental design, in addition to statistical methods used in analyzing data and designing repeated structures within processing, practical designing the Latin square.