

This course includes general concepts of scientific research, steps and techniques. It concerns also with sampling, methods of collecting, analyzing data and reporting results in a final research design