

This course introduces the concept of scientific method in educational research it also includes sampling types of experimental and factorial design, statistical analysis for each type and the factors that affecting internal and external validity of the study this course is also designed to help students using different data biases and writing research proposals •